Pall-Mall

Not so very long ago almost every inn and many a farmhouse in the southern Netherlands boasted a pall-mall alley in the backyard. Although most of these malls have gone, the game is again played all over the province. Old roofed-in alleys are restored and new malls built in public parks, while some families with homes in spacious grounds have an alley made in their garden. Girls and women are now also joining in the game, and pall-mall is likely to become just as popular as it used to be.
